11 Make Mine a Double—1992 Screaming Eagle in Priceless Double-Mag!

A signed bottle of Screaming Eagle from 1992, the inaugural vintage, coming straight from the founder's cellar in the rarest and most valuable format of all: the double-magnum.

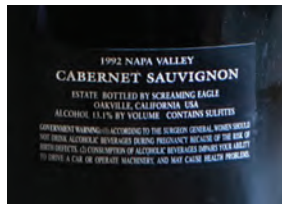

Need we say more?

We need not, but here we go anyway. Screaming Eagle is "the ultimate collector's Cabernet Sauvignon," according to Robert Parker. The 1992 is their inaugural bottling, and this ultra-rare 3-liter comes straight from the founder's cellar—signed by founder Jean Phillips. Seriously, 32 years later, how many more of these babies do you think are out there? Maybe none.

We all know that big bottles age slowly and gracefully, and the tiny bit of oxygen in this double-mag has been working its magic for over three decades. It's hard to imagine this Oakville wine being anything less than perfect. Grab this, and your cellar's got a new superstar.
